Our featured stock this issue is The Yukon Airways and Explorations Company Limited. This company was formed to provide airmail service in the Yukon Territory. Founded in 1927, the new company purchased a Ryan Brougham high-wing monoplane, the same type of craft that Lindbergh had flown across the Atlantic. Named the "Queen of the Yukon", this plane, with various problems, served the company until crash landing at Mayo, YT on May 4, 1929. From November 1927 to June 1929, three planes were used for eight known airmail flights. All three planes suffered crashes and were destroyed. The company tried unsuccessfully to raise funds for a fourth plane in June of 1930, but ceased operations shortly thereafter. ("The Semi-Official Air Stamps of Canada, 1924-1934," C.A. Longworth-Dames, 1982).

EDITORIAL

Welcome to the first issue of Alaska & Yukon Stocks and Bonds, a companion to our book of the same name. Most of you receiving this newsletter have purchased our book. For this we thank you. We hope that you find it useful.

The purpose of this newsletter is to bring you information on stocks and bonds not found in the first edition (but found in that box in the basement after the book went to the printer), prices realized on new and previously listed items, and mainly, to keep your interest alive so that a second edition will be required by popular demand!

The format will be similar to what you see here. The front page will feature an item we find interesting, especially if we can provide more in-depth detail. The second page (the one you are reading now), will have our Editorial, which really, usually, is not an editorial, but generally a place to call your attention to what is in the issue, to thank those that have provided information, and to give you a heads up on what may be in future issues. This is very similar to our newsletter Alaskan Token Collector & Polar Numismatist, now in its 25th year - see the inside back cover of our book for more information!

Prices Realized will also be on the second page as you see here. These will be reported from dealers auction catalogues (with their cooperation) and from eBay.

Frequency will be based on the amount of information we can acquire. Since we can mail nine pages (five sheets of paper) without an envelope for the one ounce rate of 37¢, a newsletter will be issued to subscribers when we can fill nine pages. This may include one page of advertising. Subscription to the next five issues is $10. Please use the subscription order blank included.

It is hoped that dealers and collectors will support this newsletter. We will require submission of information to keep this alive. When we see a particularly nice write up of a stock of interest, that dealer will be contacted, and permission to reprint that information will be requested. Hey, guys, there is no advertising like free advertising.

I will keep this issue short, just a sample of what you can expect. As I type this, the book is being shipped from the printer and I am very excited to see what the final product actually looks like!

PROSPECTUS.

This Company is formed to prospect for, locate, acquire, work and sell mines and mining claims, both of placer and quartz, in the Klondyke region of Alaska and elsewhere, giving the preference in its selection of prospectors, miners, workmen and other employés, to shareholders in the Company. No shares will be sold at less than par.

The capitalization of this Company is purposely limited to a small amount, in order that each stockholder's share of the profits may be proportionately larger.

The books, records and accounts of the Company will be open to the inspection of the shareholders.

All shareholders will enjoy the advantage of participating in the profits whether they desire to personally work at the mines or not; but none other than shareholders will be employed by the Company so long as any fit shareholders remain who desire to be so employed. The Company will charter an ocean-going steam vessel, fully equipped and provided with abundant stores, to sail from a port or ports on the Pacific Coast to Alaska in the early spring.

ESTIMATE OF SHIP'S EARNINGS.

Receipts from passengers other than Company's employés, both going to Dyea and return; from freight both ways; from carriage of bullion; from mails, express packages and sundries, estimated at $285,000 00
Expense of charter-party; fitting of ship with one thousand extra berths; provisions; service; coaling of ship for twelve return trips; stevedore's charges; port charges; insurance, etc., estimated at 135,000 00
Estimated net earnings of ship $150,000 00

The estimated earnings of the Ship amount to sixty per cent. upon the entire capital stock.
